Mark,

Sorry I did not get to this sooner but have been on leave.

I did want to include some pics of the Davidson Whaling Station building but we have not done that job yet. The pics sent are of a few typical uses for timber structures. We have several others the same but these should give some idea.

We also use HD extensively on everything exposed at Green Cape lighthouse such as gas regulators, hinges etc.

We find it a fantastic product on everything we use it for.

As you may know we will be spraying the Historic Whaling Station buildings with Lanotec Timber Seal Plus, to preserve the external fabric which is unpainted hand split boards. This will retain the raw finish look and preserve the timber as well.

Obviously one of the most important considerations is the product is not hazardous however we still use PPE as recommended.

I will send you some of the whaling Station when we have completed the work.

Cheers

Murray
